

State of South Carolina

Governor's Proclamation

WHEREAS, public health programs are essential to a strong, successful health care system that benefits all of our residents regardless of age, race, gender, ethnicity, and socioeconomic strata; and

WHEREAS, public health services promote healthy behaviors, assure the quality and accessibility of health care, respond to disasters, and assist communities in recovery; and

WHEREAS, people who are physically active, maintain a healthy weight, eat a nutritious diet, avoid tobacco products, and practice other healthy behaviors reduce the incidence and mortality of many chronic diseases that impact individuals and families in the Palmetto State; and

WHEREAS, with the theme, "Where in the World Isn't Public Health?" this year's observance recognizes the importance of informing and educating people about public health and its role in meeting the health needs of our residents as well as the broader perspective of global health issues.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Mark Sanford, Governor of the Great State of South Carolina, do hereby proclaim April 2007 as throughout the state and encourage all South Carolinians to get regular preventive health checks and incorporate healthy practices into their daily routine.
